The coffee capsules market consists of sales of coffee capsules products and related services used to prepare instant and convenient coffee at restaurants, bars, homes, and offices. A coffee capsule is a small cylindrical-shaped container that contains coffee sealed with aluminum foil. Coffee capsules contain fine ground coffee in a measured amount. Coffee capsules come in different flavors and can be used with or without a coffee machine.

One of the latest trends for the companies in the coffee capsules market is to use bioplastics and bio-degradable materials for making coffee capsules. Companies in the coffee capsules market are investing in finding ways to use bioplastics and biodegradable materials for making capsules instead of using aluminum and plastic to hold the coffee extract. Capsules made from aluminum and plastics are non-biodegradable and harm the environment thus, pushing the companies towards finding new innovative bio-degradable material such as polypropylene, which can be shredded and recycled to be used to make coffee capsules.
