Even though James' YouTube channel was Created on the 1st of January of this year it wasn't his first channel or his only one. James has stated while live on Twitch that he created his very first YouTube channel in February/March of 2013 where he would record Minecraft videos on his XBox 360 with his Friends, by stacking up "Books" in front of his TV and putting his Dads Webcam on top of them. James also mentioned that, he unfortunately deleted that channel when he made his new one, but "regrets" it because he wishes that he could look back at all his old videos and see where he came from. He also stated that since then he has had a couple channels. One where he played Roblox which only had around 200 subscribers before he deleted it and another channel where he made Fortnite videos. Before he deleted that one as well, he said that, the channel had around 1.2K subscribers and that he has never had any channels after that one except the one he is using now.
