Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 57.9 Billion by 2027, exhibiting a CAGR of 6.4% during 2022-2027. Nonwoven fabrics are cohesive fabric-like textiles manufactured by arranging fibers using chemicals, heat, or pressure. In comparison to traditionally used fabrics, such as linen, cotton, and wool, the nonwoven fabrics do not require knitting or weaving to manufacture insulation, interlining, and protective clothing, chemical defense suits and footwear components, and industrial workwear. The commonly used methods for manufacturing nonwoven materials include chemical and thermal bonding of materials and fiber entanglement. On account of their several benefits, the nonwoven materials are largely used across the automotive, personal care and hygiene, building and construction, healthcare, and filtration industries.

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.
