Due to the US Navy's Air Force's massive support for the movie with their F-14 and F-18 fighter aircraft the Commander of the Pacific Fleet had requested the special film premiere in Hawaii. This special screening was attended by over 1500 military service members and their families from all branches across Oahu and was hosted in Pearl Harbor

Aviation Museum's historic, restored Hangar 79. Along with the film, two authentic aircraft flown in the summer blockbuster were on prominent display: the F-14 Tomcat flown in the original film and the more modern F-18 Hornet.

Pacific Air Cargo has for many years lent considerable support to the Pearl Harbor Aviation Museum. So, when this urgent request came in, we had no hesitation in offering our services.”

Paul Skellon, Director Marketing, Communication and PR

added “As a former professional aviator, I was particularly impressed by the flying in this outstanding movie which is a ‘must-see’. I also urge everyone to visit the Pearl Harbor Aviation Museum which has gone through extensive upgrades and exhibit restorations in recent years. It too, is a “must-see.”
