GCC Health and Wellness Market Trends:

The increasing prevalence of chronic lifestyle diseases, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, asthma, arthritis, cancer, stress-related disorders, etc., is among the primary factors driving the GCC health and wellness market. In addition to this, the sedentary lifestyles, hectic work schedules, and unhealthy food choices of consumers are further propelling the demand for health and wellness management services across the GCC. Moreover, the elevating adoption of various healthcare activities, including yoga, meditation, and athletics, is also positively influencing the market growth. Apart from this, the growing number of mineral spas operators that use specialized therapeutic waters, such as iodine-bromine and Malkin kaya mineral water, to treat numerous cardiovascular and circulation disorders, asthma, bronchitis, etc., is anticipated to fuel the GCC health and wellness market over the forecasted period.
