

Starpower Management Considering Female Singer to Develop In to a Star

A-List Firm Starpower Management is now considering female singers, age 18 to 25 to be considered to be signed by the firm, and developed in to a national star.

MALIBU, CALIFORNIA, USA, May 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Generally representing established stars only, Starpower Management will be considering select female singers only next month in June. With an extensive history in the music world, dating back to the early 90's when he booked bands on tour, and published his own music magazine, Starpower Management CEO Bruce Edwin states that music is his passion, and that finding new artists in the music scene is a labor of love.

Who Will Save Your Soul?

Bruce Edwin states, "I'll always remember the time when I told this young, beautiful singer that I knew she was going to be a star one day. For some reason, I also told her, 'You're going to be on the cover of TIME magazine one day,' I said. "That would be amazing! Do you really think so?"

She replied as she smiled and laughed. She had just gotten signed to Atlantic, but had no idea how truly great she was and how big she was going to be. Less than a year later, pop star Jewel was on the cover of TIME. It was exciting to see her rise to the top and to be a part of that moment.”

There was this young band I had booked for one of my events one time. Atlantic Records had asked me if I knew of any great bands I could let them hear that I thought they should sign. They said they trusted my taste and judgement. So I introduced them to Matt and a year or so later they finally signed Kill Hannah who went on to tour the world.

Female Singers Wanted

Bruce states, "We are looking for a new female singer with a model look, that has a good to great voice. The select young woman may have the opportunity to be developed by us with our all star team including vocal coaches to the stars, dance instructors to the stars, Grammy Award winning producers, and more. It's a chance of a lifetime."

About Starpower Management

Starpower Management is a multi-million dollar motion picture production, management, publishing, and public relations entertainment company.
