The growing product adoption as a solvent in the pharmaceutical industry for manufacturing antibiotics and insulin is primarily driving the India acetonitrile market. Moreover, the continuous launch of various favorable initiatives by the Indian government, including the National Food Security Mission (NFSM), is leading to the escalating demand for acetonitrile-based agrochemicals. Apart from this, acetonitrile is also used for synthesizing artificial pesticides and fertilizers in the agriculture sector. Furthermore, the increasing product utilization as a solvent in liquid chromatography to influence the interaction between adsorbents and sample components is also catalyzing the market growth. In addition to this, the elevating product requirement in the chemical processing industry, along with its rising utilization for
