Build an innovative team

“Our vision was to develop a custom program that was agile, aligned with our 35 Fundamentals, and provided a consistent leadership language for all leaders across our organization, nationwide,” says Kayla Torontow, Director of People and Culture, Levitt-Safety. “With Crestcom, we have the right partner and will continue this program for all new managers and supervisors at Levitt-Safety, whether new to the company or newly-promoted through our Build Your Career philosophy.”

“We are very excited to support the Levitt-Safety vision on scaling, developing, and sustaining leadership nationally,” says Steve Leslie, Partner, Crestcom International. “Levitt-Safety has a culture of high performance and continuous improvement, and we could not be more thrilled with this opportunity.”

Levitt-Safety is a safety-focused company with the best interests of its employees and customer base in mind. In addition to selling safety supplies and service equipment, Levitt-Safety finds the best solutions from manufacturers, trains their technicians to service the equipment properly, and provides safety equipment rental. They also train teams on equipment and concepts like confined space or working at heights to help bolster workplace confidence and safety. Levitt-Safety is committed to growing its leadership team and supporting its employees to build long, successful careers.

Crestcom provides organizations with an internationally recognized leadership development program in standard and customized formats. This program provides managers with practical tools and skills they can apply directly in their daily work to improve goal attainment and business success.

The leadership sessions were held over 12 months and involved virtual, real-time sessions that were highly interactive. The sessions alternate between training modules and application sessions designed to apply the material learned. This is a people-focused program with personalized elements designed to help participants identify their own takeaways from each session.
