Some Key Highlights From the Report

Large enterprises segment accounted for a significantly robust revenue share in 2021. Increasing focus on employee productivity and security in data-driven companies are key factor driving growth of the segment. Steady adoption of scalable remote access solutions such as Software-Defined Perimeter (SDP) and Secure Access Service Edge (SASE) offering enterprise-level performance and security is driving revenue growth of the segment. High-quality user experience and efficiency are important factors in large enterprises for a smooth workflow and adoption of more advanced solutions is expected to continue over the forecast period.

Cloud-based segment revenue is expected to increase at a significantly steady rate over the forecast period. Demand for cloud-based remote access solutions has been increasing owing to better security than on-premise where many applications require access of the client on the user's machine and installation of software, which can be a vulnerability point after the work is done. Rapid digital transformation has increased demand for remote access solutions, especially in the education sector. Provision for timely and secure access to computer resources of high-end and expensive desktop software such as AutoCAD and InDesign, among others, are some of the major factors supporting demand for cloud-based remote access solutions.
