USA, June 3, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --

"The Moon in the Man": an awe-inspiring children's book that tells a story of perseverance and creativity, aiming to help young readers find their true calling in life. The book is a lucid representation that one's young mind can partially see and perceive the future. "The Moon in the Man" is the creation of published author Robert Koren, a heavy equipment technician who loves camping, fishing, and riding ATVs.

Koren writes, "I had written this book when I was a young man. My English teacher was my inspiration. She believes that I have a writing talent and that it may be something I could pursue in the future. After many years packed away in a box, I had found my book and felt it should be published as a first of possibly more to come. In this book I build a rocket ship and who would have known that I would become a Heavy Equipment Technician later in life?"

Published by Book Vine Press, Koren's new book is perfectly written for young readers to clearly see and understand their purpose and calling while they walk through their journey.

That even when you are young, what your creative mind manifests may be an indication of your future is demonstrated in this book.
