Today I started a new career with Nexstar Media as a master operator. I LOVE IT. I want to say Thank you to Lynda and Houda and everyone at Ohio Media School for making dreams come true.”

collaboration between campuses and the relationship in place with Nexstar Media Group, Inc. that would open the door and change Robert's life.

Robert enrolled at Ohio Media School because he was seeking a career change. A Firefighter veteran, he spent 23 years as a volunteer firefighter, with the last 7 years serving as a First Lieutenant. He always had a passion for media and a love for being on air, and decided to make the commitment to return to school and realize his dream.

Taking advantage of a remote internship made available through the sister campus Colorado Media School, Robert was able to sharpen his skills and gain additional experience both in front of the mic and behind. With a very successful radio show Robert was promoted to Content and Technical Producer. Enjoying the relationships he built, Robert decided he would head to Denver after graduation to begin his new career.

The Beonair Network of Media Schools includes 7 campuses, each with their own Career Services Department that works in tandem with their own students as they explore their career options and their graduates pursue employment. With an open-door policy, the campuses work together when a graduate relocates to another market.

Upon arrival in Denver, the first thing Robert did was contact Colorado Media School's Career Services Director Deborah Byrd to ask for assistance with his career search. Working collaboratively with Ohio Media School's Career Services Director Houda Crable, outreach began.

With a great relationship in place with Nexstar Media's Denver Hub Manager Charles Longfellow, Robert was able to secure an immediate interview. Well prepared to join the Nexstar team with the hands-on training at Ohio Media School, Robert was offered the job on the spot!

Grateful for his career start, Robert posted this on social media, "...today I started a new career with Nexstar Media as a master operator. I LOVE IT. I want to say Thank you to Lynda (Leciejewski) and Houda (Cralle) and everyone at Ohio Media School in Cleveland for making dreams come true. Also a BIG thank you to Debbie (Byrd) at Colorado Media School for also making this job come true!"

The collaboration between our media schools combined with an excellent relationship established with Nexstar Media Group, Inc., provided us the privilege to have changed Robert Baliker's life.
