Implementation of long-term evolution (LTE) technology-based intercoms, have been gaining acceptance from companies across all industries. According to the global general communication equipment market analysis, LTE is a modern IP communicator, which provides high data for clear voice communication, full HD video streaming and a faster installation of the intercom. For instance, in March 2021, NVT Phybridge entered into a strategic partnership with 2N to help reduce deploying costs and complexities of 2N IP intercoms (including the first LTE/4G intercom) and other communication and security solutions. 2N, a European company launched 2N LTE verso intercom for usage in residences, office buildings, apartment buildings and family homes to provide e-mail shot of the visitor captured by HD camera, when intercom detects movement near the door. Thereby, LTE based intercoms is expected to be a major trend in the general communication equipment market.
