Market Analysis and Insights

Drivers

Dramatic rise in geriatric population across the globe

An alarming increase in the frequency of traffic accidents is driving the industry. The increased demand for fracture fixators is projected to be fueled by severe fractures caused by falls and incidents among the elderly.

Increase in the aging population

The market will be driven by an ageing population that is more prone to osteoarthritic fractures, an increasing incidence rate of osteoporosis, and technological improvements such as the usage of orthobiologic products and biodegradable materials. Furthermore, a surge in the frequency of traffic accidents, sports-related injuries, and people's changing lifestyles will propel the industry forward.

Injuries caused by trauma

Trauma include bone fractures or bone breakage and tissue injuries. These injuries are corrected using trauma devices, which serve as a replacement for the damaged part of the body. Motor vehicle accidents result in a massive amount of trauma injuries. The market has been driven by a rise in the frequency of incidents in emerging countries.

Opportunities

The key factors driving market revenue growth include the rapid spread of COVID-19 around the world, a rapidly growing patient pool, significant changes in demand for and supply of healthcare solutions during the COVID-19 outbreak, growing telehealth and telemedicine trends, and an increasing need for advanced point-of-care diagnostics. Increased government financing for COVID-19 vaccine development, increased government attention on new medication discovery and development, and increased government focus on enhancing the healthcare supply chain system all contribute to the market's revenue growth.
