supplemental procedures to help improve the treatment's success rate. For two decades, Center Valley Dental has been a leading provider of dental implants.

Dental implants are recommended for people missing one or more teeth. Patients who have lost teeth or are at risk of losing a tooth due to disease, age, or accident are most eligible for treatment. During the procedure, an implant is placed in the jawbone. Over time, the jawbone fuses to the implant through osseointegration. Once the implant heals, a custom-made crown is added.

If the patient has an insufficient jawbone or gum disease, the implant may struggle to bond with the jawbone. Bacteria from tooth decay or gum disease can spread quickly throughout the mouth to other teeth and cause the implant to fail. These issues must be taken care of before a dental implant treatment.

If the jawbone has deteriorated, a supplemental treatment such as a bone graft or sinus lift could remedy this problem. These procedures ensure that the jawbone is ready and healthy enough to support dental implants. Center Valley Dental offers both supplemental treatments. A bone graft introduces new bone material to the jaw to stimulate bone growth. A sinus lift raises the sinus floor and provides more space for the bone to grow and hold an implant.
