Lavender Bliss, and Unscented will be available at Wegmans. The Nourishing Body Cream ($11.99) is a smooth cream, much thicker than a lotion that easily absorbs and is packed with a high percentage of shea butter plus other nourishing emollients and extracts. About Shea Radiance:

Shea Radiance creates vegan, all-natural body and hair care products inspired by the traditional uses of unrefined shea butter. The co-founders started making products in their kitchen to solve their family's dry skin problems since both of their sons have very dry and eczema-prone skin when they found shea butter to be the ultimate healing balm. The woman-owned brand sources shea butter directly from women-run cooperatives in West Africa to create economic access through trade which also allows for control over the supply chain. Grounded in the spirit of community, everything Shea Radiance does is rooted in creating a positive and enduring impact for their customers, women suppliers, and our planet including their commitment to a global community. By combining inspiration with science and an unconventional formulation process they create handcrafted products that influence the way we care for ourselves, others, and communities. Since day one, Shea Radiance is creating beauty solutions that produce the results everyone counts on, the daily pampering they deserve, and the natural beauty they embody. Because simple, pure ingredients make the best products, the brand blends only the finest all-natural ingredients and a scoop of love in their handcrafted beauty products. Shea Radiance's body line includes soaps, creams, and butters, in a variety of scents. After debuting with a line of bodycare products sold online at www.shearadiance.com in 2005, Shea Radiance has expanded to haircare items for all textures that cleanse, condition, detangle, moisturize, and style. Since then the brand keeps increasing its retail footprint and is sold at Amazon, Thrive, and Whole Foods.
