The healthcare industry presents an interesting paradigm for medical care where alternative medicine exists with traditional medicine, herbal medicine, naturopathy, homeopathy, and different alternative care options. There can be many disruptions, too, as medical technology continues to evolve. Many people seek holistic treatment in the same way that prompt medical intervention is crucial for the patient.

Based out of Las Vegas, NV, managing his practice for over three decades, Dr. Francis is a professional Chiropractic Physician and Applied Kinesiologist. He has been working closely with the International College of Applied Kinesiology. He brings a unique approach to helping patients, utilizing different disciplines of chiropractic care, nutrition, homeopathy, acupuncture, and muscle testing. Dr. Timothy Francis's Chiropractic Kinesiology is an alternative medicine that focuses on the holistic principles of Applied Kinesiology and chiropractic healing. Structural, chemical, and mental health, as well as manual muscle testing, are used to make a better, more thorough diagnosis that helps find the root cause of a medical condition or illness. Applied Kinesiology is conceptualized on the theory that all organ dysfunction is accompanied by weakness or medical abnormality in a corresponding muscle of the body. This premise is practically applied to diagnose and remedy organ diseases and other internal medical difficulties through muscle testing. However, Applied Kinesiology should not be confused with kinesiology or biomechanics – the study of movement. Dr. Timothy Francis uses Applied Kinesiology to treat patients holistically. His record indicates having worked with many patients with seemingly incurable conditions such as hemolytic uremic anemia, rheumatoid arthritis, Lyme disease, and more.

"When I graduated with my chiropractic when I was 23, he pushed me, he recommended that I get my naturopathic doctorate that I accomplished when I was still 24 and since then I've been using it every day. His work has given me the tools to build my practice into a successful business." - Dr. Jordan Bray [Owner at NDC Integrating Wellness]
