Market dynamics

A growing consumer inclination towards an entertaining driving experience, increasing demand for fast moving car accessories, and rising vehicle customization among a young population are the key drivers expected to fuel growth of the global interior car accessories market over the forecast period. Growth of the global automotive industry and a subsequent rise in the sales of passenger cars and pickup trucks is further likely to boost the global market for interior car accessories.

The global market for interior car accessories does face some challenges. "Availability of counterfeit and inferior quality electronic accessories, which are mostly imported from Asian continents to other regions and cost competitiveness owing to huge market fragmentation is anticipated to hamper the growth of the global interior car accessories market over the forecast period." --- Business Analyst – Automotive, Persistence Market Research
