“

This is an exciting time to build our allied health programs to meet today's growing health care needs”
Kristen Torres, Arizona College

"Allied Health professionals are an essential part of our health care system", said Nick Mansour, President of Arizona College. "Kristen brings a robust level of experience to the role that will help us build and improve our programs for the next generation of health care workers. With Kristen's leadership, we can provide enhanced support to our Allied Health students, faculty, and employee partners."

Torres will be responsible for all operations and outcomes for the Arizona College Allied Health campuses in Glendale, AZ, Mesa, AZ, and Texas County Technical College in Houston, MO. Her responsibilities include the entire lifecycle of the student journey, from enrollment services to the student experience in academics. She will also oversee career services, ensuring successful placements for graduates in the workforce.

"I am delighted to be joining Arizona College and working with a great group of healthcare professionals," Torres said. "This is an exciting time to build our allied health programs to meet today's growing health care needs. I look forward to using my experience to create long-term success and growth."
