BOISE, ID, USA, June 20, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- To show appreciation and give back to the Boise community, Pestcom Pest Management today announced the launch of its Pestcom Gives Back initiative. The program will provide free pest services to families in need living in and around Boise, ID. One family or individual will be selected every quarter to receive a free pest inspection, as well as the removal and treatment of pests. Eligible recipients must be nominated for the service.

Pestcom Gives Back connects the Treasure Valley community by letting residents nominate their friends, family, or neighbors to receive this important service. Creating a way for neighbors to help neighbors is the reason Denver Knowlton, general manager of Pestcom Pest Management, decided to launch this initiative. He's seen firsthand just how detrimental pests can be to a home, and to the health and safety of the individuals living there.

"Being in a home with pests is no way to live. Not only are bugs and rodents unsettling to look at, they are also unsanitary and often spread diseases," Knowlton says. "Whenever we remove pests, we immediately see how appreciative and happy our customers are. We want to bring that same joy to families who are down on their luck and are struggling with pests."

During every quarter — beginning in the third fiscal quarter of 2022 — Pestcom will accept nominations for families and individuals. After selecting at least one recipient, Pestcom will contact them and find a time to complete the services. Not all pests are included in the free treatment, but most are.

To nominate someone, individuals must submit their own contact information as well as the contact information of the nominee. They will also need to answer why they believe the nominee should receive free pest control. Those who are nominating may remain anonymous if they wish.
