digital transformation solutions, recently announced its partnership with Parascript, a company that has been automating processes for over 25 years. Parascript software processes over 100 billion documents every year.

This new technology partnership with Parascript will allow Tangentia to improve processing efficiency and automate tasks such as object recognition and classification, including optical character recognition and handwriting recognition, motion analysis, scene reconstruction, and image restoration. These tasks can support controlling robotized processes, navigation, event detection, organizing information, and automatic inspection. As a result, Tangentia clients can potentially save billions of dollars by reducing spending on document processing by up to 95%.

Tangentia has recently announced the expansion of its North American sales and leadership team. The company has a goal of becoming the leading player in the global Intelligent Automation Market. With the technology partnership with Parascript, a company based in Colorado, US, Tangentia has a robust solution offering, especially in the Banking, Financial Services, Insurance, and Healthcare verticals.

Vijay Thomas, the CEO of Tangentia, opines, "The partnership with Parascript will open new avenues to Tangentia's service offerings. Our customers will see the value for areas like fraud detection and handwritten document processing."

Dr. Alexander Filatov, the CEO and President of Parascript adds, "Parascript creates best-in-class

AI software that analyzes over 100 billion documents annually and automates key tasks for financial services, government agencies, and the healthcare industry through our many different machine learning techniques. By partnering with Tangentia we are able to create transcendent solutions for our clients' needs."
