Innovation - What it Means and How Elizabeth Garvish is Changing the Game

So what does innovation mean to Elizabeth and how is she implementing new ideas into her immigration law firm? As Elizabeth views it, innovation is really about "changes to ourselves, our mindsets, our thinking, and our interaction with others." To practically implement innovation, Elizabeth believes change must come from "letting go of the ingrained societal norms and the ideas that there is only one right way to do something." Striving to create change and make Garvish Immigration Law Group the Happiest Law Firm in America, Elizabeth "manifested" the diverse, predominantly-female Garvish Immigration team. Breaking from the traditional recruitment process, where it's not uncommon to have employers ask new hires "What can you bring to the firm?", Elizabeth reverses that mentality by asking "How can the firm help you?"

By being more people-centric, Garvish has seen nothing but growth, even during pandemic times. In 2021, Garvish Immigration Law Group served more immigration clients than ever, especially those in large organizations such as health care systems. The Garvish team tripled, while tough times induced by COVID-19 had unemployment rates skyrocketing.
