ecommerceplatforms.com launches a new advanced website

NEW YORK, NY, USA, June 23, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As Covid-19 and lockdowns took online stores and ecommerce platforms to the roof, there is a growing demand and thirst for ecommerce knowledge. Many people that started to work from home are looking to expand their income channels and thus need help in developing online businesses whether for selling physical or digital products. According to the latest research ecommerce transactions are predicted to reach $7.4 billion in 2025 thus making it one of the biggest industries on the planet.

Post-Covid there is still a steady growth and demand of people preferring to work from home, thus looking for a new stream of income online. The options can be overwhelming, starting from choosing a niche, sourcing items to sell, and building a functional website that actually works.

"This is a very exciting time for our company," said Mr. Ohad Ofek, president of ecommerceplatforms.com. "We started this website because we found there was a growing demand, especially from young people, to find all the information you need to get started with ecommerce in one place, which is comprehensive on one hand, yet clear and easy to make use of on the other.

Our goal is to help prospective entrepreneurs and commerce enthusiasts, as well as existing online business owners, achieve their business goals."
