"This is truly the perfect pairing. Rise's mission is to provide an empowering method of rejuvenating men and women's sexual health so they can find true intimacy," says Dan Markel, Founder and CEO of Rise Medical. "Cliovana does just that - there are no lasers, surgery, needles, probing, pain, or downtime. The Cliovana solution is what so many women are looking for but until now many were too embarrassed or scared to talk about it." The time has come for Rise Medical & Cliovana to help you get the honeymoon back.

Cliovana focuses on the clitoris with an acoustic sound wave, a blood-stimulating solution that is a gentle alternative to rejuvenation surgery. It is an entirely non-invasive treatment that creates a long-term increase in women's sexual responsiveness and intensity, helps with painful sex and lubrication, and increases orgasm frequency. The results are often felt immediately and intensify over three months. Best of all, these effects last for a year or more and can be sustained with an annual revitalization session of two 10-minute treatments.

"The soundwave technology employed by Cliovana has been around for decades to address health issues,” says Greg MacDonald, Cliovana CEO. “Using this for women’s sexual wellness is the perfect solution. It enhances arousal at the cellular level and causes the body to do more of what it does naturally - regenerate cells, which means greater clitoral responsiveness.”
