

NAMIC Announces Call for Nominations for the 2022 – 2023 Executive Leadership Development Program

NEW YORK CITY, NY, USA, June 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The National Association for Multi-ethnicity in Communications (NAMIC) is now accepting nominations for its award-winning Executive Leadership Development Program (ELDP) Class XXII, presented in partnership with the University of Virginia Darden School of Business. Spanning a seven-month timeframe, the sessions will occur in October and December 2022 and February and May 2023 at Darden University in Charlottesville and Rosslyn, Virginia. The deadline to submit nominations for the ELDP Class XXII is August 31, 2022.

“For more than twenty years, our Executive Leadership Development Program has helped increase diversity in executive suites, enabling participating companies to maximize the ROI of a diverse workforce in an increasingly competitive business environment.” said A. Shuanise Washington, the president and CEO of NAMIC, Inc. “ELDP graduates are identifying innovative ways to drive business growth in their companies in the face of improbable odds, volatility, and a changing economic climate.”

Charter Communications, a leading broadband connectivity company and cable operator with more than 93,000 employees, is the Visionary Sponsor for the ELDP for the fourth consecutive year. Charter’s Rhonda Crichlow, senior vice president, and chief diversity officer was the special guest speaker for this year’s Class XXI graduates.

“ELDP represents notable talent in our field,” Crichlow said. “Through this program, participants cultivate excellence, build valuable connections with each other, and ultimately lead us forward. Through our sponsorship of ELDP, Charter’s goal is to ensure equal access to development opportunities in our industry and support the continued growth of our company’s diverse rising leaders.”

ELDP has been recognized for its success in addressing the unique challenges faced by executives of color while strengthening the competencies all executives need to excel in business. The ELDP curriculum explores a range of business-critical topics such as strategy, finance, marketing, innovation, and leadership agility, presented as integrated components of a holistic learning experience. Since its founding, more than seven hundred executives have participated in the program.
