Packaging & Automation ("IPS"), an industrial packaging distributor and automation provider, announced today that it acquired Day-Pak Inc. based in Dayton Ohio.

The acquisition strengthens IPS's position as a national supplier that partners with customers to control their creeping expenses related to labor, freight, material costs, and damaged goods. The combined organization includes 9 distribution centers and 8 warehouses within the U.S. which are focused on providing end-to-end packaging & automation solutions for its customers.

The acquisition will result in expanded resources for both organizations. Day-Pak offers converting capabilities for a variety of materials including sheet foam, bubble, poly bags, and pouches. IPS Packaging & Automation offers a team of degree-certified engineers (packaging, industrial and mechanical) that partner with their customers on design work, process improvements, and automated equipment.
