Some of the notable players in the market are AtriCure Inc., Sanofi-Aventis, Johnson & Johnson Ltd., Boston Scientific Corporation, CardioFocus Inc., Boehringer Ingelheim GmbH., Biosense Webster Inc., Endoscopic Technologies Inc., Bristol-Myers Squibb Corporation, and St. Jude Medical Inc. In May 2020, CardioFocus Inc. HeartLight X3 Endoscopic ablation system was approved by US FDA for the treatment of drug-refractory recurrent symptomatic paroxysmal atrial fibrillation.

The surgical procedure segment includes catheter ablation procedure, surgical ablation, and maze procedure. The catheter ablation procedure dominated the market due to growing patient awareness, increasing demand for non-pharmaceutical treatments, and improved healthcare groundwork. On the basis of product, the market is segmented into catheter ablation and surgical ablation. The catheter ablation segment dominated the market, due to the high acceptance of the product in surgical procedures.

The factors influencing the market are increasing healthcare expenditure, an increasing number of people suffering from atrial fibrillation, and a larger prevalence of catheter and surgical ablation treatments. Growing cases of heart patients and a rise in the number of cases of atrial fibrillation will propel the market growth. However, stringent product approval regulations and high cost of the treatment will hamper the market growth.
