MCRO team is recognized for the quality in mobile app development, which can be observed in the many projects that turn out to be successful.

It is not easy to find a mobile app development company. Every business has criteria that must be respected to create engaging and attractive mobile apps. MCRO has a comprehensive portfolio that proves its experience in this field. For example, Conference Compass is one of the mobile solutions that offer powerful software solutions for virtual, hybrid and live events. The MCRO team accepted the challenge to develop the fully customizable app and make, in response to 2020 events, a transition from live to virtual and hybrid events. They successfully implemented a customizable white label app using React Native. They developed the mobile platform into a Virtual Event one. The platform now allows live streaming and recording, chatting, live polling, QA sessions, real-time analytics and a user-friendly web app for event programming, letting users access it from any device.

"We consider MCRO as one of the best choices when it comes to app and web development. Our team of engineers can create amazing mobile apps and websites to help your business thrive and grow. We have extensive experience with the latest technologies, business perspectives, and the necessary skills to bring any client's idea to reality. As we are now recognized as one of the top web and mobile app developers, based on our clients' reviews and opinions, we have to strive even more to achieve our client's goals and deliver beyond their expectations. This recognition not only honours us but also obliges us to do more" - Alex L, CEO MCRO.
