

Limor Zamir, Renowned Westside Realtor, Examines Home Sellers Cutting List Prices as More Buyers Take Pause

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, June 29, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Home sellers are increasingly cutting their asking prices as buyers, constrained by higher mortgage rates and overall inflation, have become less willing to jump into the housing market at any cost. The growing number of price cuts, a trend showing up in data from Southern California and across the nation, is one of the strongest signs yet that the previously red-hot market, fueled by low mortgage rates and all-cash bidding wars, is cooling.

Limor Zamir, renowned Westside realtor, believes that this trend means people should be buying now as soon as possible. "This gigantic shift in the market strikes a challenge to everyone," states Zamir. "But in the midst of it all, the right mindset for future investment is to buy now and wait than to wait and buy. We have to trust the process of the market tides turning again when the economy bounces back. It's going to be alright."

The price reductions don't mean overall home values are dropping. In Southern California and the wider U.S., they make up a minority of listings, and most homes still sell for more than the list price. Industry experts, for now, do not see a plunge coming in the housing market, catapulted to record-high prices in the first two years of the pandemic as many people sought out more space and had new savings to spend.

Zamir continues, "Sellers may have cut prices, yet many still close with incredible investment and profit. Eager buyers are consistently putting down offers for their dream homes. Our job is to continuously guide them through the process, and work with all the resources possible to make each transaction a success."

Values could come down modestly, some experts said, if the Federal Reserve's actions to tame
