known for its historical, natural, and geographical significance, and full of archaeological treasures from the Dadanite, Nabataean, Roman, and old Islamic civilisations, AlUla is a destination that reveals 7000-year-old of human history. The city is an open-air museum and is home to the Kingdom's first UNESCO World Heritage Site, Hegra – the famous Nabataean site with 110 well-preserved tombs carved in the sandstone rocks and dating back to the first century B.C.E.

AlUla offers tourists a variety of curated experiences in heritage, art, culture, wellness, and adventure. As a vital city located along the famous old incense-trading routes running from southern Arabia, north into Egypt and beyond, AlUla's oases dotted the area and offered a much-needed respite for caravans of weary travelers, providing a welcoming place to rest, commune, and recharge. AlUla is now reviving and celebrating its history by welcoming visitors again.

Combined with high-quality services and first-rate accommodations nestled amongst the staggeringly beautiful desert landscapes, AlUla is being introduced to the world as a must-visit destination for every traveler looking for a unique experience.

In support of the Kingdom's Saudi Vision 2030 plans to transform AlUla into a world-preferred tourist destination, flynas recently announced the resumption of its flights from AlUla to Riyadh, Dammam, and Dubai, with two weekly flights for each destination. Flynas was the first-ever airline to launch international scheduled flights to AlUla from Dubai back in November 2021.
