Salt Lake City, UT —Statues.Com is honoring pioneering former First Lady Abigail Adams as the inductee for July to the "SculptHER™" special collection commissioned by Statues.Com for championing the rights of women, as well as exerting her influence with her husband President John Adams when it comes to the major issues surrounding the creation of the Declaration of Independence.

Statues.Com is celebrating Abigail Adams with a 7-inch bust – in conjunction with the July 4th holiday commemorating our nation's birth of independence – for her significant contributions in helping to shape the national debates through her husband John Adams that lead to the formation of the Declaration of Independence.

Abigail Adams, (1744–1818), who was sometimes considered to have been a founder of the United States due to her influence with her husband, John Adams, our country's second president and a signatory to the U.S. Declaration of Independence, was a prolific writer whose correspondence gives an intimate and vivid portrayal of life in the young republic.

As the revolutionary spirit swept through the colonies, Abigail strongly supported the movement for independence and applied that same philosophy to women being granted more rights. When her husband was preparing to pen a statement of principles that would be adopted by the Continental Congress as the Declaration of Independence, she asked him in a letter to “remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.”

It is this letter that is most commonly cited as proof of Abigail’s commitment to advocate for women’s rights. Abigail did ardently support a woman’s right to education. In 1778, she wrote her husband that “you need not be told how much female education is neglected, nor how fashionable it has been to ridicule female learning.”

Abigail lent her voice to the most pressing issues of this era in American history. As the nation’s two major political factions, the Federalists and the Anti-Federalists – which would later become known as the Jeffersonian Republicans – evolved into political parties during the 1790s, Abigail pointed out her husband’s friends and foes in both groups.

The “SculptHER™” collection, Telling Her Story Through Sculpture” is honoring 24 women over the next two years from the fields of science, civil rights, history, astronomy, aviation, education, the arts, politics, social activism, medicine, and much more. Statues.Com will present one of these women in a white bonded marble or bronze bust each month.

“After three decades of creating and manufacturing sculptures for buyers around the world, it’s time to celebrate Her Story Through Sculpture! Each bust will amplify the
