Originally from Japan, this Artist has earned world recognition for the creativity and expression in her artworks. We share with you some insights from the artist.

"I was born in Saitama prefecture, near Tokyo, Japan. As a child, I grew up familiar with many flowers and trees. I also had the opportunity to see many beautiful kimonos because my mother was tailoring them. At the university, I studied Japanese classical literature and language. Nature, kimonos, and literature continue to have a significant influence on my artistic practice.

Since 1998, I have been working as a freelance illustrator and designer. Apart from my daily work, I was looking for a way to express my style creatively. In the fall of 2015, I realized that multiple exposures to digital photography were exactly what I was looking for. That was my start as a visual artist.
