

New emerging startups graduated from the first specialized Art+Tech and NFT accelerator FUELARTS (USA, NY) 21 June 2022

*In the period 16 May — 21 June 2022
FUELARTS successfully conducted two online pre-acceleration programs*

NEW YORK, USA, July 5, 2022
/EINPresswire.com/ -- CLASSIC
ART+TECH STARTUPS — devoted to the digital transformation of the traditional Art Market &
DIGITAL & NFT STARTUPS — dedicated to NFT startups and NFT-based products

These programs were designed for Startup Founders & Cultural Entrepreneurs, Art Managers & Gallery Owners, Artists & NFT Creators, Students & Young Professionals to give early-stage founders the knowledge to fundraise and launch their Art+Tech / NFT startups 3 times faster and with a minimum budget.

Our team is happy with the results of the extensive work and presentation of “early-stage” startups. We wish our graduates success and grit in their realization!”

Denis Belkevich, general partner of Fuelarts: "Organizing batches for very early-stage entrepreneurs is not typical for any accelerator. However, we deliberately went for this experiment, because we saw a big problem in the Art+Tech Market. Most of the entrepreneurs in this sector do not have enough knowledge, expertise and tools to turn their brilliant ideas into successful startups. In our pre-acceleration programs, we focused on finding the most relevant and vital problems in the industry and the search for a market fit. Our team is happy with the results of the extensive work and presentation of "early-stage" startups. We wish our graduates success and grit in their realization!"

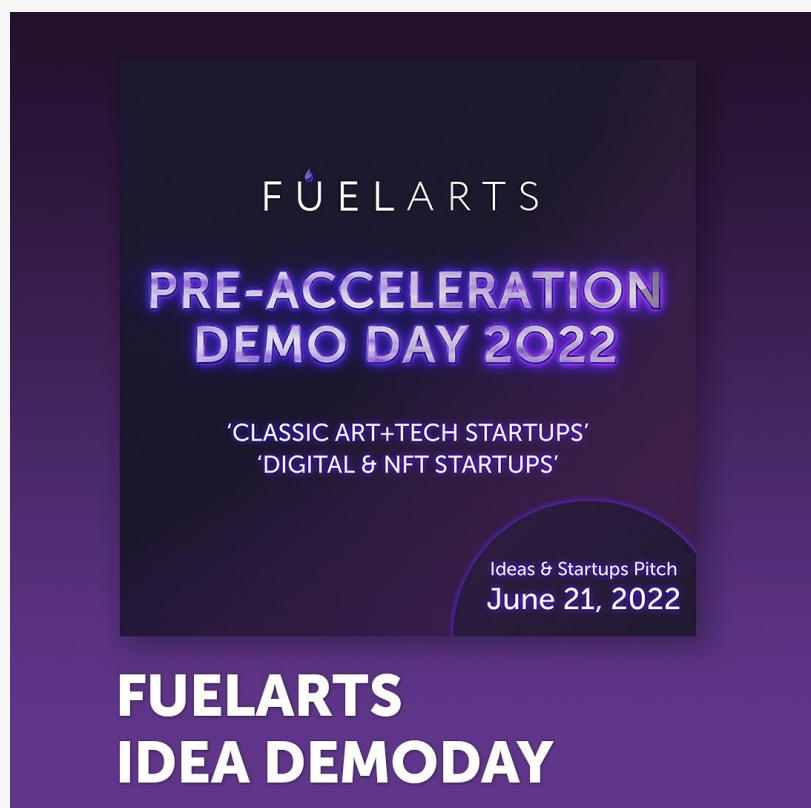

These pre-acceleration courses together with Art+Tech & NFT Startups Report 2022 have completed the first half of the year for Fuelarts company.

This June, Fuelarts added a new smart investor - former COO of Christie's Americas, former SVP of Artnet Roxanna Zarnegar, and her "Provenance Venture Partners".

The upcoming summer months will be spent preparing the semi-annual report, which will be published in September 2022.
