In contrast, seamless pipes are tougher and more pressure resistant.

Seamless steel pipes have more strength and are being used increasingly in industrial boiler applications and in the oil and gas sector. These pipes are preferred over others due to their strength, durability, and corrosion resistance properties. With the growth in the oil and gas sector, a lot of pipelines are expected to be laid around the world, which will drive revenue growth of the market. Seamless steel pipes are also used in infrastructure as well as construction for supply of water, sewage transport, and others.
