Rankings on the 2022 NextGen 101 lists are based on data collected by Channel Futures between February 1 and April 30, 2022. The NextGen 101 list honors industry-leading managed service and technology providers who are driving growth and innovation for the tech channel via the solutions they deliver for their customers.

“The NextGen 101 is designed specifically to honor partners dedicating resources to building out their practices — all while maintaining the integrity of their core businesses,” said Allison Francis, senior news editor at Channel Futures. “These companies truly represent the future of the technology channel and IT industry. They are most assuredly some of the most watched organizations in the channel today.”

“As the technology industry and channel enter a very challenging market, channel leaders are looking for ways to accelerate growth. The Channel Futures NextGen 101 represents some of the fastest-growth and high-potential MSPs in the market today. These companies are providing innovative approaches to customer solutions and partner engagement never seen before. They truly represent the future of the channel,” said Robert DeMarzo, vice president of content for Informa Tech Channels.

“We are very pleased to be recognized by Channel Futures for our work as a Managed Services Provider,” said Tyson Stargel, Co-President of Stargel Office Solutions. He added, “The world of Managed Services or IT is always changing, with increased demand to protect infrastructures against hacks or compromises. Between new threats and the challenges associated with remote work locations, there is greater than ever need for vigilance and for companies to partner with the right team to protect their valuable information and networks. We thank Channel Futures for being included on this list, and for their work in promoting and advocating for this industry.”

The recognition closely follows another recent recognition for Stargel Office Solutions, which was named a Toshiba ProMasters Certified Elite Dealer, placing the company on a list of approximately 50 Toshiba Dealers worldwide who qualified for the designation. Stargel Office Solutions also recently celebrated its 35th anniversary in business earlier this year.
