“The North American Weed Tour was created to reach out and establish new relationships with cannabis people worldwide,” said Joey Brabo, Chief Operating Officer of Respect My Region. “Launching all of these podcasts and working with so many great people allows our brand to grow exponentially, share education and knowledge, and showcase a bunch of really great cannabis businesses and entrepreneurs.”

“When we were looking at the 2022 tour, we all agreed that legal cannabis had grown immensely since last year. It was an easy decision to begin working on expanding right along with it. Our approach has always been to understand, listen, and report on the culture, so this year we’re trying to catch up and get ahead of the curve,” said Mitch Pfeifer, Founder, and CEO of Respect My Region. “If you have a legal cannabis company looking to get your story out to real weed people, people who love cannabis, whether industry or consumer, these podcasts and this campaign is a great way to insert yourself into the local conversation.”
