analytics and data management for government and private organizations. Earlier this year, Urban SDK was awarded the EFI Entrepreneur and Job Growth Award, which recognizes Florida businesses that have created jobs and invested in communities across the state. Urban SDK also was named a member of the prestigious AWS Sustainable Cities Accelerator, focused on the rapid growth of clean tech innovation.

"It's very important for us to have a great company culture, so we're obviously very proud to be one of the 100 best places to work," said Urban SDK Co-founder and COO, Justin Dennis. "One of our goals in creating Urban SDK was to have a place where people would not only enjoy working, but also be proud to work at."

"We've worked with hundreds of early-stage B2B tech companies who are on-mission to transform the way we live and work," said Paige Robinson, Founder & CEO of Will Reed. "We believe the most successful companies are those like Urban SDK, who are committed to building human-first cultures that offer meaningful work and support the full employee experience."

"This recognition is the result of the passion our team brings to all parts of their lives," said Dennis. "There's nothing better than seeing members of different departments get together at all-hands meetings and impromptu happy hours, or away from the office at crawfish boils and charity drives. It really does bring an energy to the company that shines through to the product."

About Urban SDK
