The mechanical ventilator market consists of sales of the mechanical ventilator by entities (organizations, sole traders, or partnerships) that help a person breathe when they find it difficult to breathe on their own. A mechanical ventilator is a machine that automatically performs all or part of the effort required to transport gas into and out of the lungs. The ventilator is programmed by the respiratory therapist and doctor to manage how frequently and how much air is pushed into the patient's lungs. Mechanical ventilators are most commonly found in hospitals and transportation systems such as ambulances and Medevac air transport.
