VANCOUVER, BC, CANADA, July 14, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global smart plug market size reached USD 4.92 Billion in 2020, and is expected to register a CAGR of 40.1% during the forecast period. Market revenue growth is primarily driven by shift in consumer preference towards smart home applications. Improving standard of living among consumers owing to increasing disposable income is expected to boost demand for smart plugs for household use.

Rise in adoption of home automation technologies is projected to drive revenue growth of the market during the forecast period. Smart plug is a small adaptor that can be plugged into a regular electrical wall outlet and can be connected to a Wi-Fi network. The ability of smart plugs to convert ordinary devices and appliances in homes into smart ones is contributing to growing demand. Smart plugs allow consumers to control the power supply to the appliance through an app on a smartphone. Rising energy bills and need to minimize energy consumption are other key factors expected to drive growth of the smart plug market during the forecast period.
