CEO, Aurel Davidyan, commented about the future location: "I grew up in the area of Portland/Vancouver and have built many businesses here and across the nation but my heart is always here in this city. I am excited about our Sandy Blvd headquarters and I am looking forward to continuing to serve our Pacific Northwest customers and those all across the United States. The Truck Depot plans to grow more locations eastward across the United States over the next twenty-four months and beyond. The plan is to fund such growth, in order to meet the national demands for truck parking, by offering private investment into the truck depot since its inception.
