The global e-health market was valued at $74,476 million in 2019, and is projected to reach $2,30,640 million by 2027 at a CAGR of 14.5% from 2020 to 2027.

E-health is the delivery of healthcare using modern electronic information and communication technologies when healthcare providers and patients are not directly in contact and their interaction is mediated by electronic means. Among other things, the services that are thus provided include physical and psychological diagnosis and treatment, telepathology, vital signs monitoring, electronic prescribing, teleconsultation, and others. Furthermore, automated and interoperable healthcare information systems improve medical care, minimize healthcare costs, reduce manual errors, and enhance patient satisfaction, while optimizing reimbursement for ambulatory and inpatient healthcare providers.

North America accounted for the highest revenue in 2019, and is anticipated to maintain its dominance from 2020 to 2027, due to favorable regulatory scenario regarding to e-health, high adoption of e-health solutions to curtail soaring healthcare costs, regulatory requirements regarding patient safety, and presence of a large number of e-health companies, such as Allscripts Healthcare Solutions, Cerner Corporation, GE Healthcare, and McKesson Corporation, Infor, Inc.
