"We are so pleased to announce that yet another one of our appliances — the Equator Full-Sized Dishwasher — was named a 2022 ADEX Platinum Award winner in its designated category," said Nick Mathews, of Equator Advanced Appliances. "Our organization is always focused on providing the highest quality and most innovative appliances available, which makes this award even more special."

In addition to the features already described, the Equator Built-in Dishwasher boasts even more noteworthy functions. To cut down on water and save time, users have the option to select a Half Load Option. With six total wash and dry options, this dishwasher has the most customized options on the market. Users also enjoy whisper-quiet operation, with the appliance emitting a maximum of 51 dB when in use. Other top features include a stainless steel micro filter, concealed heating element, adjustable tines, and a rinse aid indicator.

For those who are unfamiliar with ADEX (Award for Design Excellence), the organization runs the largest and most well-respected product design and architecture competition in the world. Nominated products have the chance to win platinum (the highest award), gold, or silver distinctions in their specific categories. Points are awarded by an expert panel of judges, which determines the product's final score. Minimum scores are required in order to be considered for each award level. Every April, winners are announced in Design Publications.

Approximately 3,000 industry professionals are part of the ADEX Global Advisory Board. Operating since 1995, thousands of companies have entered design projects, furnishings, building materials, and other consumer products. Only the best in show receive one of the three ADEX titles.

Other Equator models that took home the ADEX Platinum Award include the All-In-One Cordless Self-Cleaning Sweeper + Mop, the Equator Single Bottle Chiller, and the OAC 2000 Outdoor Air Conditioner.
