Market Overview

The archwire market is witnessing growth due to rising cases of misaligned teeth, crooked teeth or jaws, tooth decay, periodontal disease, and technological advancements in orthodontic products. Furthermore, advancements in the procedures include fixed braces, removable braces, retainers, and adhesives-based products. For instance, according to the World Health Organization (WHO), malocclusion is one of the most important oral health problems, after caries and periodontal disease. Its prevalence is highly variable and is estimated to be between 39% and 93% in children and adolescents.

Global archwire market report is studied thoroughly with several aspects that would help stakeholders in making their decisions more curated.

By Type, the market is primarily fragmented into

- Nickel-titanium alloy
- Steel
- Polymer Materials

Based on type, the market is segmented into the nickel-titanium alloy, steel, and polymer materials. The nickel-titanium alloy segment is expected to witness significant growth in the archwire market. The good spring back and flexibility, which allows for large elastic deflections results in increased clinical efficiency of nitinol wires since fewer archwire changes or activations are required. These factors rises the demand for nickel-titanium alloy in the archwire market.

By End-users, the market is primarily segmented into

- Hospitals
- Dental Clinics
- Others

Based on end-user, the orthodontic supplies market is categorized into hospitals, dental clinics, and others. The hospital's category is anticipated to witness a significant growth rate during the forecast period. A large number of dental procedures such as malocclusion and irregularities of the teeth are performed in the hospitals. In addition, the availability of specialized healthcare professionals and medical equipment along with the adoption of new technology are some reasons for the growth of this segment. For instance, In July 2020, Align Technology, Inc. announced the global launch of the Align Digital and Practice Transformation (ADAPT) service, which will further provide doctors with the tools and support they need to transition to a digital orthodontic practice using a clear aligner model.
