Government cloud refers to a hybrid design of cloud virtualization and computing solution designed especially for federal institutions and organizations to deliver citizen services, host web applications and improve overall operational effectiveness. It provides government information regarding creating documentation, settings for backup, strategic transformation, and configuring customized settings for backup developing teams. It is available in various delivery models, including platform as a service (PaaS), infrastructure as a service (IaaS) and software as a service (SaaS).

Covid-19 Impact:

We are regularly tracking the direct effect of COVID-19 on the market, along with the indirect influence of associated industries. These observations will be integrated into the report.

Global Government Cloud Market Trends and Drivers:

One of the primary factors driving the market is the extensive adoption of government clouds across various industries for accessing the vast citizen data regarding policies, user logs and systems. Additionally, the integration of artificial intelligence (AI), the Internet of Things (IoT), and cloud-based solutions to sequence unstructured solutions to implement disaster recovery and data backup is propelling the market growth. Besides this, the utilization of identity and access management (IAM) and the introduction of cloud-based government portals to ensure accountability and transparency are increasing the product adoption rate. Furthermore, the escalating demand for cloud-based security services to promote decision-making procedures, extensive investments in the research and development (R&D) activities to introduce advanced technological solutions and several initiatives undertaken by governments of various nations to strengthen the infrastructure are some of the other growth-inducing factors.
