

Hocus Pocus Goes to Evil Extremes in PROSPER

Samera Entertainment brings us a quick look at this bewitching thriller from Midnight Releasing.

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, July 21, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Now on VOD, the last witch of Salem comes home to feast in PROSPER, a haunting odyssey of horror from Midnight Releasing.

April Hollingsworth stars as Irene Good, a rumored descendant of Sarah Good, the first woman tried and executed during the Salem Witch Trials. Irene makes her living as a necromancer who can commune with the dead. One day, Dalton (Nicholas Wolfe) pays a visit to Irene in a desperate bid for closure in the aftermath of his brother's untimely death. But what Dalton doesn't know is that he's been led into a trap, and he's brought his friends along for the ride. But at least one of his friends has the good sense to know that something's amiss, and that's Dalton's best-friend Sam (Shayla Love). What follows is an unfathomable night of terror where nothing is safe and not everyone will survive.

"I set out to make a movie that is going to creep you out when you're alone, keep you awake in bed, and really screw with your mind. I'm told I did that ten times over!" – Deronte Smith (writer/director)

People have asked me 'Why does the movie feel so real? I tell them it's because the primary location was actually haunted and it comes across in the movie.'

PROSPER also stars Davien Harlis, Renier Cortes, Walnette Marie Santiago, and Anastasia Pekhtereva. Writer and director Deronte Smith crafts a spellbinding tale of gruesome horror in the same vein of all time classics like The Exorcist and Scream.

"People have asked me 'Why does the movie feel so real? I

PROSPER was shot on an ultra low budget throughout the state of Georgia. One particular location, a plantation home in Alpharetta, is the center of the action, and gives off some rather creepy vibes that go beyond the events on screen. This nefarious aura adds an extra dimension of tension that gives PROSPER a unique spin on an old fashioned tale.

"PROSPER is a wild movie with a vivid depiction of the occult. It combines nail-biting suspense, fun pop culture and a bizarre fascination with Satan." – Darrin Ramage (CEO Midnight Releasing)
