About Ludlow Creek

Ludlow Creek is a group of 5 close friends and accomplished singer-instrumentalists who love to create and perform music. Tapping into their strong bond of friendship and utilizing an array of instruments – including both acoustic and electric guitars, keyboards, bass, drums and occasionally mandolin –they create genuine, heartfelt music with infectious guitar and keyboard riffs featuring strong vocal harmonies. Generating a sound that can only be described as “modern classic rock,” some have compared their catalog of material to the sound and feel of The Doobie Brothers and The Eagles.

Formed in 2013 as the Dayton, Ohio based cover band “Southbound”, they performed over 200 plus shows. Over the years, they began crafting music that embodied the sound and feel of their various musical influences, and eventually decided to pursue writing and performing their own material fulltime. As the band prepared to release their second album over the winter of 2021-2022 they renamed themselves, and Ludlow Creek was born.

Ludlow Creek is:

Allen Seals: Guitar, Mandolin & Vocals

Dave Benson: Guitar & Vocals

Jeffrey Friend: Drums & Vocals

Michelle Scarpelli: Keyboards & Vocals

Tom Scarpelli: Bass & Vocals
