LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, July 24, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Lil Durk ("LilDurk.com" or the "Company"), a Canadian news & technology company enhanced by A.I.-driven neural networks, announced today that Lil Durk has successfully proceeded with the launch of their news website.

Lil Durk

“We are super excited to announce that our latest news section is propelled by Microsoft’s ML.NET machine learning technology. Furthermore, we have mitigated our website to some of the latest and greatest servers across datacenter locations in the USA & Canada,” said Alexander Elder, Founder and interim Chief Executive Officer at Lil Durk. “The load balancer we created will ensure that our website is always up and running.”, Mr. Elder continued.

Lil Durk is currently monetizing their news website through selling press releases, social media management & marketing, web development, consulting and Google AdSense.

Designed to alleviate the overwhelming amount of content on news feeds, Lil Durk quickly raised private capital and went from the shadows into the spotlight. The website being launched prior to the May 2023 deadline is another example of Lil Durk’s commitment to the news & media community. In light of the successful website launch, Lil Durk continues to execute its core business strategy: the mass conversion of newswire content to discover the most important reads for market consumers, while also delivering a free, hassle-free experience based on your personal interests.

“When comparing Lil Durk to other news networks such as CNN, MSNBC and Fox News, I would argue that one should support us due to the fact that we are not controlled by any large monopoly. This allows you to directly support local journalism.”, Mr. Elder added.
