local governments. He is highly regarded for his expertise on GASB standards, having advised auditors and governments on the implementation and subsequent application of various standards. Dean is the recipient of the National Federation of Municipal Analysts’ Award of Excellence, a two-time recipient of the Award for Most Effective Citizen Education from the Governmental Research Association, and earned the Distinguished Research Award also from the Governmental Research Association. Additionally, he served on the Editorial Board of the Journal of Governmental and Nonprofit Accounting.

“Dean’s ability to translate complex policy combined with his background as a user of governmental financial statements makes him an incredible asset to our Government and Public Sector advisory team,” stated CRI Managing Partner and Chairman Bill Carr. “Dean has an uncanny ability to take the most complex of matters and break them down into usable information for process creation and compliance. His knowledge of GASB, FASB, FASAB, and IPSASB standards and his extensive experience implementing and applying them will make him a tremendous advisor to our government and public sector clients.”

Grant requirements, complex accounting models, and frequent standards updates combine to make governments some of the most highly regulated financial entities. By leveraging technology, data analytics, and a foundational relationship-based approach, CRI's governmental accounting team provides assurance, compliance, and dedicated support to educational and governmental organizations of all sizes.
