estimations, competitive scenario, and wavering market trends.

Rise in demand for cresols in agriculture engineering and increase in applications of the product in paint & coating fuel the growth of the global cresols market. On the other hand, toxic nature of the substance restrains the growth to some extent. However, use of cresols in pharmaceuticals and combustion engines is anticipated to create lucrative opportunities in the industry.

COVID-19 scenario-

Rapidly growing pharmaceutical industry, during the pandemic, has given way to increase in demand for cresols across the globe, thereby impacting the market positively. However, on the other hand, the temporary ban on exports and imports, especially during the initial phase, affected the sector to some extent, thereby giving the global cresols market a mixed impact altogether.

The global cresols market report is analyzed across source, product type, application, end-use, and region. Based on source, the synthetic segment accounted for the major share in 2020, holding nearly three-fifths of the global market.

The natural segment, however, would exhibit the fastest CAGR of 3.9% throughout the forecast period.
