/EINPresswire.com/ -- The global

cosmetic antioxidants market is forecast to reach USD 212.8 Million by 2028, according to a new report by Reports and Data. Cosmetic antioxidants are specialty ingredients that protect skin cells from getting damaged, and it also slows down the aging process.

The rate of air pollution is rising due to industrialization and urbanization all around the world. Air Pollution causes early skin aging, dryness, wrinkles, acne, pigmentation, cellular damage, and hair fall. The rise in health issues caused by air pollution has encouraged both young and elderly population to use antioxidant cosmetics. The antioxidant cosmetics protect the skin from UV rays and other harmful air pollutants. The price of natural antioxidants is very high, which are acting as a restraint to the market of cosmetic antioxidants.

The above-mentioned factors collectively generate possibilities for the market growth, while factors such as adverse effects of synthetic cosmetic antioxidants pose limitations in the market. However, each factor would have a definite influence on the market during the forecast period. Consistent developments in the cosmetic antioxidants market owing to innovative efforts have enhanced the efficiency of cosmetic antioxidants.
