creators, announced today the official launch of the Soundstripe mobile app, giving creators the ability to discover, save, stream, and download unlimited music from Soundstripe's extensive catalog while on the go. The new app allows creators to quickly find the perfect track to sync with

Creators are inherently mobile, and we're excited to launch this product that is specifically there for them, where they need it most."

Lauren Cutrell, VP of Product at Soundstripe

A mobile app has been the #1 request from both visitors and subscribers to Soundstripe, as more content creators and filmmakers look to discover, create, and edit their creative projects while on-the-go. The Soundstripe app is designed for ease-of-use, with a simple yet powerful interface for exploring its diverse music catalog, featuring thousands of high-quality tracks across dozens of genres that are clear for unlimited use on any platform, from YouTube to TikTok to broadcast and film. Users can simultaneously search and filter songs by mood, characteristic, genre, instrument, energy, and more. They can also browse playlists that match their search criteria, enabling them to discover even more relevant songs curated by on-staff music editors. The app features a snappy and smooth scrollable waveform that speeds up the process of examining a song's sonic characteristics, a feature that promises to save time for creators searching for just the right track. Additionally, users can favorite tracks, create and manage playlists, download music to their device (or a cloud file service), and easily share songs with others.

"We started Soundstripe with the goal of providing the world's best royalty-free music catalog that was super easy for creators to use,” said Travis Terrell, Co-Founder and Co-CEO of Soundstripe. “The new Soundstripe mobile app is a big step forward with that vision, as creators can now access many of the same features they love with Soundstripe’s web experience in a native mobile app, while being able to stream, save, and share Soundstripe songs and playlists on their device, boosting their productivity while away from their computers.”

“Creators are inherently mobile, and we’re excited to launch this product that is specifically there for them, where they need it most,” said Lauren Cutrell, VP of Product at Soundstripe. “Whether they are at the gym, in an Uber, or anywhere else inspiration may strike, our music and features will be there as an essential part of their continuous, creative workflow. I look forward to getting feedback on the app from our creator community and continuing to serve them with the best possible features and tools.”

New visitors who have not yet signed up for Soundstripe can create a free account right from the app, including via options to sign in with Apple or Google. Upon creating a free account, users can explore the music library, save favorites, and download song previews all from the mobile app directly.
